ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

SUBJECTS OF INTEREST TO FRUIT GROWERS AND GARDENERS.

INSTRUCTIVE FACTS ABOUT NARCISSUS WITH SUGGESTIONS IN RELATION TO ITS CULTURE.
Queen Ann's Double Daffodil—A Rare Sort Adapted for Foreign Climates.
Narcissus—or as these flowers of the poet are more commonly termed—daffodils, are most useful for furnishing blooms in the early spring months for out of doors and during the winter by forcing. They are mostly hardy but the exception of the polyanthus section. The last named, by the bye, are invaluable for forcing and may be grown either in pots or in glasses. These flowers early and the flowers are exceedingly fragrant. A valuable sort among the single varieties for forcing is the Stella. This variety also succeeds well in the garden whenever it is given a comparatively dry spot in which to grow. It is a white flower with a golden eye. Numbered with rare and handsome double narcissus in the one depicted in the cut and described as follows in Popular Gardening:

QUEEN ANN'S DOUBLE DAFFODIL.
Queen Ann's daffodil belongs to the trumpet section of the family, a fact hardly to be suspected by the engraving annexed, for it is so full in respect to multiplication of parts that the normal form is quite disguised. The blooms are of the shape shown in the engraving, the sections of the perianth being arranged in regular layers of six parts. The color is a pale lemon yellow in the bud, and the plant is dwarf. In common with all the smaller growing daffodils this variety prefers a rich, dry loam abounding in sand, but no rank manure of any sort. The position should be fairly sunny; the bulbs should be set not too deeply. It is an exquisite variety for forcing in a cool pit, this being indeed the treatment from which in our climate the best results should be expected. A deep, moist soil is the one chief requisite for obtaining a free growth and abundant bloom of the larger varieties, while the smaller kinds prefer a dryer soil. All love a humid atmosphere.

KEEPING CABBAGE IN WINTER.
There are two methods of storing cabbage which we have found satisfactory. One is to select a high piece of ground, and plant the cabbages in rows, or bed is made with dry straw, about the width of two cabbages heads and as long as the plants will grow. The plants are pulled up, carefully sorted to this place, and then, having the outside leaves removed, the heads are placed in the straw, and as closely together as possible, making two compact rows. A few inches of straw are put carefully on the cabbage, and earth is thrown on gradually to the depth of about a foot, drawing in the roots to form the top of a ridge. The earth is taken along side of the row, thus affording additional drainage, while the straw which is fastened must be well packed down with the back of the spade.

PIECE OF WHOLE TONGUE GRAFTING.
The disadvantages of piece roots as suggested by students of the subject, the last meeting of nurserymen, are: 1. Roots more prongy and more horizontal, 2. surface rotting, therefore not so hardy, 3. Small growth the first year, 4. Union imperfect on pieces of roots, 5. Trees more crooked, 6. Trees apt to tip over in orchard, 7. Not so long lived.

THE ADVANTAGES OF PIECE ROOTS, according to the same authority, are: 1. Making more trees, 2. Hasten cheap multiplication, 3. Allow of direct and consequent rooting of sections of value in the northwest where it is good, even for stone fruits, the Chickasaw plum being used for grafting peaches, 4. Enable us to increase rapidly our stock of rare plants, of which we cannot get seeds or cuttings.

THE ADVANTAGES OF WHOLE ROOTS are briefly summed up as follows: 1. Better, denser and finer roots, 2. Have more force, therefore get larger trees, 3. Budding on whole roots is the best in nearly all cases where hardiness is not of special importance.

THE OBITUARY ORANGE.
Among the desirable and little known plants for the window garden is the Obituary orange, a dwarf tree of the size of remarkable beauty. It will flower and ripen its fruits perfectly in a window box, and is a source of value in the northwest where it is good, even for stone fruits, the Chickasaw plum being used for grafting peaches, 4. Enable us to increase rapidly our stock of rare plants, of which we cannot get seeds or cuttings.

ACROSS THE WAY.

"Have you a friend across the way?"

"Have you a friend across the way?"
"Yes, I have a friend across the way."
"And when there comes a rainy day,
Care you not out, and can you
To some one else, as I can do,
To some one else, as I can do,
I would say to mamma today,
You had better be a day."
"But I have friends—dear friends," I cried,
"With friends, remembered friends of home."
"A hand of brothers, side by side,
To greet me if I go or come."
"How dear they are, I cannot say,
Nor how it cheers me day by day
To see across the valley far,
How they are and beautiful they are."
"And you should see the roses they wear;
Their mantle takes an air of green,
Their rainbow tints, you know, fair,
Or crimson veins with silver sheen,
But yet I think I love them less,
When, all in winter shadows dress,
Their broken ranks in silence lie,
Beneath the soft moonlight sky."
"Sometimes a misty curtain draws
Between us and the roses of home;
But when at sunset it is gone,
I see the roses of home again,
For where the roses frills divide,
The roses of home are side by side,
And in it I see the roses of home,
While you smile and another
Form is there, and I am alone,
And smiles through my mist and seems to say,
"Heaven has beyond us such a little way."
"Friends are not so far away,
For any one as old as you,
And when I'm old and you are dead,
I'll go and see you in the dead,
But I'll rather wait to see
C. H. across the street and me;
And so I will, and play peep-
We can't see the little baby here."

TWO DOCTORS.
Almost every one has made his jest about the process of doctoring. It is a fact, however, that the process is a very serious one, and the one prescribing exactly an opposite course from that ordered by another, but not every one has an opportunity to conduct such an experiment as was made by the late Baron Lutz, formerly prime minister of Bavaria.

The baron was once severely wounded in battle in both legs. The wound in one leg was much like that in the other. It struck him here was a chance to study the ways of the surgical profession and beguile the long hours of his convalescence. He accordingly called in one doctor and gave him charge of his right leg, but told him nothing about the wound in the other, and kept him in another surgeon for his left leg, keeping him similarly in ignorance about the wounded right leg.

The doctors adopted a very different method of treatment, but both wounds healed at about the same time. When the baron's legs were quite well, he derived a great deal of amusement from getting the doctors together and mystifying them with questions about the way each had treated "his leg."—Youth's Companion.

CURIOUS OLD INDIAN SIGNS.
About five years ago, a man of a mystery which the people of that community cannot explain. In a hummock near the river are two complete circles, one 60 and the other 100 feet in diameter. The circles are made of stones, and are completely barren of vegetation of all kinds. These circles have been there since the recollection of oldest citizens, and no one knows how or when they came there. It must be that they are Indian signs, and the circles are the signs of a savage warrior was (and of all he surveyed)—Macon (Ga.) Telegraph.

THEIR FIGHTING INDIANS.
There are scores of Indians on the reservation north from $20,000 to $250,000 each, and when the reservation is thrown open by congress, as it will be in a very few years, there will be in the hands of the Indians a large number of the richest Indians in the United States. Following are the names of some of the wealthy Indians.

Mrs. Joseph Donette, a full blooded Indian widow, with $50,000; Chris Galloway, a full blooded Indian, with $40,000; Joe, Coates, 120 acres and $80,000; and the Coates family, worth $125,000, the Coates family of the richest—Pittsburg Sound News.

HEBREW CHAIRS.
In such of the Hebrew synagogues of this town as employ paid choirs many of the singers are Christians who are totally unacquainted with the Hebrew tongue and alphabet. By way of aid to such members of the choir hymns are printed in Roman letters. The languages, however, is Hebrew, and the songs are sung in Hebrew, and the result is fine and the choirs of several synagogues are famous.—New York Letter.

TOMATO POISONING.
A singular disease has just been called to notice by a prominent physician. It is the form of poisoning of the human system by the use of tomatoes as food. The disease is manifested along the line of recession, similar to that of an exposed nerve. The only remedy has been found to be the use of the tomato. If the disease continues the teeth fall out; not usually more than one being lost in a season.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

WASHINGTON'S THANKSGIVING.
The first Thanksgiving proclamation of Washington as president of the United States was made in New York on Oct. 3, 1789, setting apart Thursday, Nov. 26, of that year, "to be devoted by the people of these states to the service of their God and glorious being who is the author of all the good that is, that was, or that will be."—Exchange.

THE MOST INTERESTING FACT OF MR. GLADSTONE'S FACE.
The most interesting fact of Mr. Gladstone's face is his eyes. They are described as of a "splendid, flashing, dark brown color." They show his fire and energy, and his face an ever changing expression.

Mexico is called a republic, but as a matter of fact it is governed by an oligarchy of landlords. Some of these landlords own, or command, 500,000 acres of land.

MR. PEDDICOORD'S DAY IN BED.

He Takes the Doctor's Advice and Obtains Some Interesting Results.

"I think I'll stay in bed today," remarked John Henry Peddicord when the alarm clock went off at 7 a few mornings ago. "I don't feel very well, and I read a few days since an article by a prominent physician, in which he said that if people would go to bed and stay there a while they would live longer, and keep quiet, they would live to a good old age."

"Well, I think I would," said Mrs. John Henry Peddicord encouragingly. "You have been complaining of a severe headache for several days, and I have become quite anxious about you." So John Henry turned over on his pillow and settled himself with his unenvied luxury.

He had just got to sleep again when the baby woke up. The baby had not read the learned article by the prominent physician, and it would have had no effect on her if she had. She was opposed to sleep on general principle at any time, day or night, and only succumbed at the latter time from dire necessity, when she could no longer keep her eyes open. But stay in bed all day? Never!

Baby's waking was the signal for her mamma to rise. "John Henry, love," said Mrs. Peddicord, "as you are not going to get up, I think I'll let you amuse baby while I dress. The girl is busy this morning, so I will have to do it myself."

Such a help. Mrs. Peddicord knew, it'll be so. Baby's waking was the signal for her mamma to rise. "John Henry, love," said Mrs. Peddicord, "as you are not going to get up, I think I'll let you amuse baby while I dress. The girl is busy this morning, so I will have to do it myself."

"I'll go and bring up your breakfast, love, if you'll just mind the baby while I go downstairs for it," said Mrs. Peddicord. "I'll be sure I'll set her on the bed and you can play with her."

But baby had some conscientious scruples about going to bed just after dressing, and she fled several emphatic protests, which the disappearance of her mamma did not tend to render less energetic.

This time John Henry's efforts to assuage the grief of his child were utterly unavailing. He endeavored to explain to her that the features of Edna's chubby rubber doll, were worthy of more than a casual glance, but baby would not listen. Finally Mrs. Peddicord, seeing her husband's assistance and carrying off the baby, while he sat up in bed, propped with pillows, ate his buttered toast and belted eggs, and coffee, and thought that the prominent physician's idea was not such a bad one after all.

His breakfast eaten, John Henry Peddicord lay and dozed and lazily dreamed for perhaps half an hour, when his wife entered the bedroom and said to him: "She had an idea."

"John Henry," she said, "I've no end of shopping to do, and I just thought I'd go today, while you are at home. No, no, he wouldn't mind at all. And he didn't for a while half hour after Mrs. Peddicord had disappeared. The baby had been fed, and for the space of thirty minutes thereafter was a model of angelic sweetness. Then came a change, however, and the infant became more and more restless, and finally, when John Henry performed various gymnastic evolutions on the bed for his child's amusement, she became so restless that she finally cried out, and the mother, who was sitting up in bed, propped with pillows, ate his buttered toast and belted eggs, and coffee, and thought that the prominent physician's idea was not such a bad one after all."

After Mrs. Peddicord had been gone an hour John Henry thought of the possibility of staying in bed to rest was a delusion and a snare, and he tried to connect a good reason for foregoing his rest, and following the prominent physician's advice.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

Heavy snow-storms prevailed in the Northwest on the 29th.

Senator Ingalls is offered the editorship on several great metropolitan papers and a $15,000 job to lecture. Disasters at sea during the week included the wreck of three vessels in the Gulf of Mexico, with the loss of sixteen lives, and a terrific storm in the Red Sea, deluging the island of Massowah and destroying 100 lives.

Resolutions have been adopted by the Nebraska Legislature approving the action of the United States Senate in refusing to consider the Force Bill. The resolutions were passed by the votes of Democrats and Independents.

The chief feature of the Navy Department's exhibit at the World's Fair at Chicago will be a full-sized modern battleship. The vessel will be built upon piles on the lake shore at Jackson Park, and will have a complete armament and will exhibit exhibitions and battle drills will be given.

One hundred and fifty-one miners were blown to eternity in the mammoth mine in the Connellsville Coal Region on Jan. 27th. It is said to be the most serious mining disaster that ever occurred. The immediate cause of the explosion is unknown, for no one in the mine lived to tell the tale.

A train carrying the Seventy Cavalry and Battery B, Light Artillery, from the scene of the recent Indian war to Fort Riley, Kans., collided with a passenger train, and between fifteen and twenty soldiers were killed, and many more seriously injured. A number of Cavalry horses were also killed.

McInerney, it is said, loves company, and McKinley and Blinn, each of whom have been relieved by their respective successors in the responsibilities of the state, naturally feel a bond of sympathy. It is reported in the Berlin newspapers that Mr. McKinley intends to visit the ex-emperor in Germany in order that he may personally express his admiration of that statesman and his policy.

The revolution in Chili is a more extensive affair, at least in the way of military demonstration, than the recent ones in Brazil and Argentine Republic. The army is supporting the President and the navy is acting with the revolutionists. Victory so far seems to be with the revolutionists, and the government forces are being forced into the interior.

The navy has blockaded the ports and bombarded the places occupied by the government. The Force Bill is apparently dead forever. Several Republican Senators who have heretofore supported Force, now declare that they will never vote to bring up the bill again, as too much violence has already been given up to it. The President, however, is applying all the administrative pressure to the delinquent Republican Senators for the purpose of effecting the passage of the Force Bill, and the Democrats will continue to keep their eye upon it and take nothing for granted.

The National Farmers' Alliance Convention, in session at Omaha, Neb., adopted resolutions in favor of a convention of one delegate from each State to be held Feb. 22, 1892, to fix a place and time for holding a convention to nominate a Farmer's Alliance candidate for President and Vice-President of the United States. The convention adjourned on the 20th, after electing officers and selecting Chicago as the place for the next National Convention. John H. Powers, of Nebraska, was elected President, and August Post, of Iowa, Secretary and Treasurer.

The executive committee of the American Federation of Labor, met in New York on the 27th. Secretary Eugene P. Keogh, of the circular which Mr. Powderly issued recently requesting all labor organizations to send delegates to a conference to organize a Farmers' Alliance, was decided to pay no attention to this circular, for the reason that it was unwelcome to labor organization to meddle with politics. This is probably the death blow to the third party scheme, and it is well for the farmers and workmen that it is, for a third party would only operate to dissipate the political strength of the farmer and labor union, which can attain its end only by using its efforts to support and control the Democratic party.

SODA-ASH, PAPER AND GLASS.
The Great Syracuse Concern Wants to Know Concerning the Wonderful Things Told of this Land.
Chief Engineer Root, of the Syracuse Soda-ash Works, spent several days during the past week in making observations in the vicinity of this city, for the purpose of ascertaining the facilities for the manufacture of soda-ash, paper and glass at this point. Mr. Root is an engineer of wide experience and his observations upon this subject have extended to various parts of this continent; but he declared that without doubt the vicinity of Cloverport revealed the most remarkable combination of the elements entering into the manufacture of soda-ash, glass and paper that ever came to his observation. Mr. Root left the city Monday morning, taking with him photographs and drawings of the various subjects of his observation and specimens of materials; his purpose being to prepare an exhaustive report for the use of the concern which he represents. Mr. Root's comments upon the resources of this place are flattering in the extreme, and should his suggestions be acted upon, Cloverport will be the location chosen for the investments and operations of a concern operating upon a capitalization of fifteen millions of dollars.
Mr. Root came to this place at the instance of Maj. J. T. Miller and expressed himself to Maj. Miller as being surprised at the wonderful concentration of resources which had been brought to this attention.
